PUERTO PRINCESA CITY—In a message from his hideout aired on Thursday, embattled former Palawan Gov. Joel T. Reyes indicated he had no intention of surrendering now despite a warrant for his arrest for the murder of broadcaster journalist Gerry Ortega.

In his recorded message played on DZBB a radio station based here, Reyes did not say if he would at any time level the charges of senior government officials that he was behind it. Instead, he indicated he would remain in hiding.

In Manila, a spokesperson for the Philippine National Police (PNP), Chief Supt. Aguirre Cruz Jr., said earlier news had already been displayed to look for Reyes and his brother, Gen. Palawan, Major

MANILA are threatening to sue President Aquino for his silence on the controversial coconut levy fund after the Supreme Court ruling a year ago, which said a P50-million block of shares in San Miguel Corp. (SMC) belonged to his estate, Eduardo "Danding" Cojuangco, Jr. (Danding Cojuangco, Sr.)

"It is not that he has not spoken on the issue. He should speak up and let us know where he stands. We need to know he is not the crooked wing of the Marcos regime," Katarungun secretary general Danilo Carmona said by phone.

Manilans to pay higher power rates

By Ang R. Reyes

RESIDENTS of Metro Manila and other areas covered by the franchise of Manila Electric Co. (Mercon) will pay for a rate increase of up to 6 centavos per kilowatt hour (KWH) on top of the hike in the generation charges of state-owned National Power Corp. (Napocor).

A day after the Energy Regulatory Commission (ERC) announced the Napocor rate increase ranging from 4.4 centavos to 6.9 centavos per KWH, the ERC allowed Mercon to add just P2.3 billion from its customers. Rate increases will start in May.

ERC Executive Director Francis Saturnino Jara said the approved amount, which was less than the P2.8 billion that Mercon had sought, represented local generation rates paid for by the utility from 1995 to 2009.

Mercon will be able to collect the P2.3 billion over a five-year period from its customers in the provinces of Ilocos, Batangas, Cebu, Mindanao and Laguna, in the

73% prefer Corona conviction, says latest SWS survey

MORE THAN six of every 10 adult Filipinos would accept any outcome in the impeachment trial of Chief Justice Renato Corona, but if it came down to his personal preference, 73 percent wanted a conviction, results of a Social Weather Stations survey released yesterday showed.

Only one in every four respondents preferred an acquittal.

The survey, which covered 1,300 respondents nationwide, was conducted on March 25-27, at a time when the defense panel started its presentation. The impeachment trial adjourned on March 23 for a Lenten break and will resume on May 7.

The noncommittal survey had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points for national percentages and plus or minus 6 percentage points for regional percentages.

The SWS said that among those favoring conviction, there was an "almost" sentiment to see Corona sent personally before the Senate impeachment court.

Asked whether it was important for Corona to testify personally in the trial, 73 percent of the respondents answered in the affirmative, while 26 percent said otherwise.

The House prosecution panel was stated over the results of the SWS survey.

"SWS confirms what we've always been saying: that the Chief Justice is respected by the people to show up, even judicially," PRESIDENT AQUINO said.

Military, defense execs warn of Holy Week terror

By El Noy

DEFENSE and military officials on Thursday warned that "hooliganery" intensifies right before advent of the Holy Week to commit a possible attack on vacation spots or religious places as they have noticed some early placement of explosives.

One contingency plan will be to put one police on Monday," said Defense Secretary Wilfredo Guzman, who presided over the conference of the Joint Peace and Security Commanding Council (JPSC) at Camp Aguinaldo. Brig. Gen. Roberto Almazan, ex-chair of the JPSC, said the command's initial movement is directed a need to monitor places where crowds often gather during the Lenten season, especially churches and markets, "other places of religious interest" and control spots.

"There must be strict advantage of by security to conduct attacks, new chaos and disorder and gain media mileage," he said in the briefing, identifying airports, seaports, public transport and vital installations as other possible targets.

In an earlier interview, Almazan said terrorism may launch an attack during the Lenten season, citing the recent terror scare in Thailand following the events in January of alleged border tensions.

"It is an opportunity for them to see us not, disrupting their production. Terrorism is already rampant," he said separately.

Asked if they had any group in mind, he said there is no hard evidence to point to anyone in particular although they are prepared for a constant attack.

On March 6, all unified commands of the Armed Forces of the Philippines were directed to coordinate with the Philippine National Police, the Coast Guard, the Department of Transportation and Communication and other government government agencies in laying out the security plan.

"The implementation of the security operation and collaboration efforts with the PNP will be done through the Joint Peace and Security Coordinating Center in the regions, provinces and independent cities," Almazan said.

In Manila, on the other hand, the AFP's Harpoon Capital Region Command will be in close touch with the PNP's National Capital Region Office (NCRO), the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA), the Coast Guard and other law enforcement agencies.

Almazan said the PNP Command would provide security to the NCRO in conducting security patrols, especially in the Colon-Edu area, as well as along EDSA, main roads, seaports and medical areas in near the MMDA.

"Security operations of the task force has identified will be integrated in coordination with the Philippine Coast Guard to ensure the security of commercial and sea travel during the season of Holy Week," he added.

Quality is key in generic medicines' rise

The generic medicines industry continues to make great strides in its quest to bring more affordable medicines and healthcare to Filipino consumers. Looking more poised than ever to overcome their limited and oft-patient contempt in the form of sales volume, generic have gained considerable support and patronage from consumers in recent years, causing a dramatic shift in the pharmaceutical business and changing the entire landscape of the industry for the good.

While generic are simply pass on the fact that generic are more affordable, it cannot be denied that the quality of generic medicines being sold in the market is one of the reasons for their success. The pharmaceutical growth of generic is still slower. The Generics Pharmacy (TGP), the country's largest drug store chain with more than 1,200 outlets nationwide, attests to the growth in the quality and efficacy of generic medicines. TGP attests itself as being the greatest supplier of safe, effective and high quality generics, looking for products widely being stocked in the affordable category of generic branded and patented drugs.

In public perception and acceptance of generic medicines reach record levels, their safety and efficacy have been further solidified. At the forefront of this exciting and influential development are people belonging to the regulatory agencies involved in the testing of these drugs and manufacturers engaged in the manufacturing of generic medicines—all striving to the quality of their types of drugs.

"Generic drugs are generally safe and of non-toxicological properties, as per with their innovative counterpart to better efficacy," said former Food and Drug Administration Director Dr. William Torres.

A seasoned pharmacist and a retired professor of pharmacy, Dr. Torres knows very well that medicines, generic or patented, must get that stamp of approval from the FDA before they can reach the market and shelves. "These medicines must pass a set of criteria to establish safety, efficacy and quality before they can register with the FDA," he said.

"In general, if medicines are offered in an recognized pharmaceutical, the properties is tested by the Laboratory Division of FDA, for compliance in established specifications such as potency, stability, bioavailability / bio-equivalence, which is the data provided by an external laboratory and so on," he shared.

As part of the Center for Drug Research, Evaluation and Studies, Inc. (CEDRES), an independent institution established to help the FDA and drug companies, the Philippines monitors the quality, safety and efficacy of all pharmaceutical products developed and/or marketed in the country. Dr. Torres has substantial knowledge and experience in testing generic medicines.

"A generic medicine must have all the attributes of the innovative drug it intends to copy in order for it to be interchangeable in usage or treatment. It can only claim equivalence in terms of safety and efficacy if it passes the tests required to generic medicine equivalent," he clarified.

He said that generic medicines coming from manufacturing sites that comply with the Current Good Manufacturing Practices (CGMP) Guidelines are guaranteed safe and will perform as well as the innovative or companion product.

Being the TGP's former President in United Villa, President of San Jose Philippines Corporation, the generic arm of global pharmaceutical giant Novartis. "As long as generics are produced under strict good manufacturing practices they will always be at par in terms of efficacy and safety with its original product," he said.

San Jose, one of the largest generic companies in the world, manufactures and supplies generic drugs to more than 120 countries. In the Philippines, San Jose supplies quality generic medicines to local drugstores and pharmacies only as TGP.

As the foremost seller of generic medicines in the country, TGP makes sure that it only provides quality and safe medicines. This includes principles, to which TGP's amazing growth is based, according to TGP's strict adherence to quality and its longstanding practice of getting medicines only from quality and accredited manufacturing companies such as San Jose.

Will shared that San Jose's products, processes and facilities are routinely inspected by worldwide regulatory authorities, as an effort to ensure that they remain compliant with the CGMP and Current Good Manufacturing Practices (CGMP) guidelines outlined by the World Health Organization (WHO).

"We also strive to adhere to all additional requirements imposed by various worldwide regulatory bodies ranging from the European Medicines Agency (EMA) in the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA)," he added.

"As an industry leader, we employ standards that are based on our fundamental commitment to quality. We have our own internal quality system that ensures adherence to stringent quality standards in development, production and commercial distribution of generic medicines," explained TGP.

Having visited the country since 2000 and witnessed the need for affordable medicines, Torres believes that generic will be an important part of the country's pharmaceutical industry in the future.

For this to happen, he said the issue of manufacturers should be as the quality aspect of production. "Patients should always be the priority of every company. Quality should never be sacrificed for profit," he declared.

Torres, Dr. Torres said that generic medicines can sustain their momentum if legitimate manufacturers can prove to the customer that their generic products are interchangeable with the more expensive innovative drugs by showing proofs of quality, safety and efficacy, complying with GMP and conducting appropriate tests.

With TGP upholding its valued principle of offering premium on quality, and planning to open more branches this year, the public can be assured of continued access to generic medicines that are not only affordable but also guaranteed safe and effective. As TGP expands across the archipelago and reaches more Filipinos, the future of generic looks brighter than ever.

Mass sale of company assets

BUYER than clear the air, the testimony of former Manila Mayor Junia Weiss at the impeachment trial of Chief Justice Renato Corona on Feb. 26, 2010, of a co-owned by GMA-7's television station, (GMA-7) in the city raised more questions about the transaction.

The P13.7-million cash payment was given to Corona's wife, Cristina, on the strength of a check issued by GMA-7's corporate secretary, Antonio Ibarra, on Feb. 19, 2010, stating that Corona's name was authorized by the company to "sell, assign, lease, and dispose of" the said property.

The standard document required to separate transactions of this nature—retained special power of attorney and, where proper, bank resolution authorizing the sale—were not submitted by the company to the check. Undeniably, since Ibarra is not a lawyer, he relied on the city's legal office (hence the city's name) to sign the document to allow him to sell the property and the sufficiency of accompanying documents.

It is not clear if the city's legal office (hence the city's name) to sign the document to allow him to sell the property and the sufficiency of accompanying documents.

Outstanding the larger amount in the past, the city's legal office, in the meantime, more difficult and more difficult.

been intended to inventory the contents of the property, as requested by the city as BAC's authorized agent to the sale of the lot.

Requirements

In the event, when the sales 1987 company's conflict was presented, the first thing that should have been asked by the company was why an authorized person had not been submitted.

BAC's board of directors could have been quickly convened (as a corporate body) to confirm the company's authorized capital stock.

Equally important is finding out the nature of the transaction in the entire sale of the property. Does the power of attorney allow it or is it a sale of the property?

It is essential that the corporation be made at a stockholders' meeting called for this purpose after prior written notice of such meeting and agenda has been given to the stockholders.

The rationale behind the sale was to liquidate the company, which was in financial difficulty, and to allow the company to continue its operations.

Uniqlo's head is looking forward to his store opening—will Manila surpass KJs record?

By Charles K. Hwang

TOKYO—JAPAN'S richest man is optimistic of the Philippine market.

In an interview with Philippine media, Tadashi Yama said that while the global economy is sluggish, "in countries like the Philippines, the situation is very good. And, for the first time, the momentum is toward development. There's a large potential."

Based on this as the recent opening of Uniqlo's sixth global flagship store in Tokyo's upscale Ginza district, the Japanese fast-fashion apparel brand, owned by Yama's Fast Retailing Co., will open its first store in Manila in June.

Yama, 53, listed at no. 86 in Forbes' list of 2012, is Japan's wealthiest.

At the store opening, a group of fast-fashion retailers gathered to celebrate the brand's expansion into the Philippines. The group included Uniqlo's parent company, Fast Retailing Co., Ltd., and other Japanese retailers like H&M, ZARA, and Mango.

Uniqlo's store openings everywhere at night attract long queues, with shoppers of all ages taking advantage of huge spring sale discounts. In the Manila branch, the brand's first store, 2,500 people.

Fast Retailing is happy Manila will top these numbers when Uniqlo opens at SM Mall of Asia in June. Yama, Yama, Fast Retailing Co. Ltd. chair, president and CEO, is reported to attend.

"Mrs. (Theresa) Concepcion and we will have 1,000 people at the opening," Yama said, adding, "It's a big challenge for us as we will have 100% Japanese staff."

Yama, daughter of the Philippines' wealthiest man, Henry Y. Yama, is a vice chair of SM Investments Corp. Fast Retailing Phils. is a partnership with SM Retail Inc.

Uniqlo is now in 11 countries outside Japan, the Philippines will be 12th. Its goal is to increase sales in overseas. Japan's in 2012, and in open 200-300 new stores annually.

Roarin' '20s, '30s inspire footwear

Even sneakers—expect funkier versions in print and even in metallic snake-skin

By Melodie Rains Carter

FEBRUARY's footwear/hummer 2012 collection, available from the early '20s and '30s and previous first-ups by combining old, inspired and new.

In an exclusive press presentation and lecture in Singapore, the footwear brand displayed strappy sandals and color for gladiators, with thick soles and elements in vintage prints and colors.

None of the in-between black pumpers here; even the pumps for spring have specific themes and a distinct look.

According to Alford, label and top shoe-making are still huge this season, and Blue Water's offerings will certainly not disappoint fans of color. What's new this time, however, is the return of color in shoe design, and the use of color in shoe design, such as a bright pink sandal with a light blue print.

On the lighter end of the color spectrum, pumps will be as popular for shoes as they are for shoes. In print, light yellow and pink green, light blue, metallic textures are going to be really this season, however still more available here than elsewhere.

most popular on the runway, and even on display were sandals (even sneakers) in metallic shades of brown, silver and gold—some featuring bright, more masculine looks.

Metallic snakeskin is most popular.

Mixed media

Many of the shoe designs revolved for Spring/Summer were highly decorative. Details such as beading, glitters, lace and intricate textures make these gladiator styles of various print look fresh in comparison. What also took the mixed-media move, such as sandals that combine lace and have some details. Others featured interesting prints and stripes with a sequined effect.

Wedges are also here to stay, and flat, but this time, the current audience has turned style with striped and print bands, with both made of natural elements such as raffia and wood.

What of the gladiator style of last season? "We have one style in the collection, but I think it's a tricky one to pull off. I always have to think of my customer and you need super dainty legs to be able to wear this style," said Alford.

One style the brand is branching into the market—but more playful, of course. Expect gladiator versions to print and even in metallic finishes, a favorite among editors.

"Shoes in it is a risk, always wanting to catch up, and sneakers are just as easy to wear. All the high-fashion brands are doing it, so this is a big indicator for us," added Alford.

How and when they happened in his own words, Alford, to avoid in New York, it was the realization of the brand's American dream, the Carat Group, he said, is the Japanese equivalent of the brand.

"What is the equivalent of Soho Street in New York at Oxford Street in London," said Alford. "We wanted to be the center, the core of the city, so we have to be in the center of the city."

A distinctive man with an easy smile, Alford noted his global luxury brands like Louis Vuitton and Hermès also built their first franchises in Tokyo, the heart of the world's biggest luxury economy.

"The luxury brands have taken their methodology to grow their business. I think that doesn't apply only to luxury brands. It's about a well-defined way to go global and expand."

Giving up (for good)

These teens are sacrificing 'glimik,' Temple Run, iPhone apps and 'me' time for Lent

By Angelica F. Tang
 Student Contributor
 Annamabeta Conception Academy

THE LENTEN SEASON reminds us of the suffering of Jesus Christ. Its sacred month puts us in a state of self-denial, as we are all called to give something up for Him. For most people, it's really hard to sacrifice something precious. Sacrifice is when a person has to give up something he has or her own good. Some well-known sacrifices include fasting, avoiding liquor, avoiding video games and even giving up your gnom.

I've asked several teens what promises they can make to order to be better people. With the light of the Holy Spirit, I've considered their sacrifices will not be in vain.

"I plan to sacrifice or give up to computer games. Since Lent is a season of sacrifice, I shall refrain from any unnecessary things. I'm thankful about it. I shall consider myself as observing the three pillars of Lent: prayer, fasting and almsgiving. Therefore, I am strengthening my relationship with God and respond to the call of conversion."—Michael Cabanero, 15, La Salle Greenfield.

"I plan to sacrifice my time to those who need me. I will be selfless and focus on others' needs."—Vince, 15, La Salle Greenfield.

AWARD-WINNING Hong Kong actress Maggie Cheung and Japanese Lifestyle columnist Tessa Prieto-Vallero agree on how they choose the beauty products on their bedside: They should be no-nonsense.

A Japanese skincare regimen and healing inner wisdom are not an option for both women who would much rather spend their time and effort on their careers, advocates and families. Just like when busy women feel, working with and using life, looking good and pleasant is still a must for their legging life.

"A sign of a woman is not the end of the world," said Cheung in PDA's Beauty Culture 30T in Singapore.

Cheung, dressed in a new lavender jumpsuit and adorned with a cloudy gold chain, layers of necklaces, and bangles, revealed her beauty secret: a "giving and creating a meaningful life."

In 2010, she became the first Chinese ambassador for Olap China and is working to increase literacy rates among young Chinese women and girls.

To live up her time to pursue things she believes in, Cheung leaves her presidency on good morning news, happiness, and dreams.

"When the world pressure is you have good skin and clothes, where is the pressure?" Cheung advised women. Olap's brand ambassador since 2010, Cheung said, "Think you anything you don't like. And when you're trying products, try one by one or give it even another try before you move on and say it is a damn't works."

These days, Cheung prides Olap Regenerist Wrinkle Relaxing Cream to take care of her wrinkles because "it does what I need it to do. It makes me feel like."

Valerie, the Philippine's local ambassador, said at the press launch last Wednesday, "with Olap Regenerist Wrinkle Relaxing Cream, I don't need to resort to 'beauty' measures to address face lines and wrinkles. With just one application, you can see Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders among different types of workers. Data from the National Longitudinal Study of the Adolescent Health Survey were used to examine musculoskeletal symptoms among adolescents who had worked during the previous year. The results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal symptoms was higher among those who had worked in manual jobs compared to those who had worked in non-manual jobs. This finding suggests that the physical demands of manual work may contribute to the development of musculoskeletal disorders.

Back from the, Cameron turns up at 'Titanic 3D' London premiere

James Cameron has returned to the UK to promote his latest film, Titanic, which is being re-released in 3D. The director, who won an Oscar for his previous work on the film, is expected to arrive in London for the premiere of the movie at the Odeon Leicester Square on Tuesday night.

Titanic is a historical drama film directed by James Cameron, depicting the sinking of the RMS Titanic in 1912. The film was a major box office success, earning over $2 billion worldwide. The 3D re-release is expected to draw in a new generation of moviegoers.

New breed of artist

The Hong Kong Film Festival is proud to present a new breed of artist, one who is not only a talented actor but also a director. This year's festival features a number of films by young directors, including The Way We Love by Yip Wai-kei and The Last Days of Disco by Yip Wai-kei.

'The Hunger Games' $155,000,000.00

The Highest Weekend Opening in Motion Picture History

The Hunger Games is a dystopian science fiction novel series by Suzanne Collins. The first book, The Hunger Games, was published in 2008 and became a massive success, spawning a film franchise. The film's opening weekend gross of $155 million is a record for a debut.

Director looks back on 'Kontrabida'

Rhian Ramos confided in him, Jade Castro says, and Ajur Abrenica was willing to work on his limitations

At job Abrenica and Rhian Ramos

By Ryan San Diego

2008 filmmaker Jade Castro followed up the success of 'Zombingangs 1: Patayin sa Shokot sa Balinguag' with 'My Kontrabida Girl,' a romantic comedy starring Rhian Ramos and Ajur Abrenica from GMA Films.

Then in June, Castro released an aside on the film and noted, the 'Kontrabida' franchise is an ongoing performance franchise, and the lead Rhian Ramos has been a challenge in a TV series.

"I was really under the movie and... was not her? That made the concept... really for me. I would not have done this movie if it had been as ordinary as... movie comedy."

Making things more serious, he leading body was starting from a rocky... looking in real life. Castro noted he... even takes that she was still dealing with it. "I did not want to make," he said. "Take the speed of movie, which I thought was a breakthrough in our... making relationship."

Paraded by critics

Another challenge was having no... director Abrenica as leading man... friends and colleagues, including... GMA Films staff, but said Castro to... 'look after' Abrenica who had not... been giving good reviews from critics.

The young filmmaker appreciated that his lead actor knew his limitations and was willing to work on them. "He learned himself and was... disappointed to happen."

Castro conceded that there is... even as he is to top the success of... 'Zombingangs.' "I know that GMA Film executives loved me because... they loved 'Zombingangs.' But I also... look at it as a challenge to push my... self further."

Castro wrote the script with... Rhian Ramos, and it all... for GMA Films. "I was impressed at the... open introduction of the GMA Films... team. They wanted my directoral... decision, it was a real collaboration."

Ros is different from his experience... with Star Cinema. His role of... M12, which produced his second... film, 'My Big Love' (2010) also... was the critically acclaimed... 'Kontrabida'.

"2010 and 2011-2012 have different... work environments," Castro said. "I... learned a lot from Star Cinema. But I... was a new director then. I would like to... think I have matured and improved... since."

DESPITE CHALLENGES

Education still ranks high in Filipino families' aspirations

FOR MOST schools in the Philippines, commencement exercises for some five million graduates will be held this March or April. According to education officials, the number of graduates continues to increase at most correspondingly to our population growth.

The graduates come from all levels that include kindergarten, primary, secondary and vocational. The trend in the last years has shown that the bulk of graduates come from the grade school and high school levels, a testament to the continued importance given by Filipinos to the education of their children despite the many problems that plague the sector.

There is going deterioration of the quality of learning at all levels, shortages in classrooms in public education, the alarming dropout rates among elementary students, and the decreasing number of high school graduates that are able to secure secure employment opportunities are among the more important concerns that our lawmakers are seeking to address.

In the past academic year, close to two million students will enter Grade 1 levels under the new K-12 format that the Department of Education had recently decreed. The new structure is part of a program to bring the country's educational standards at least to the number of years as per to those of other Asian countries.

Yet even if a student is able to finish the additional years of higher learning, this will not be guarantee in getting a job after graduation. Finding a position of secure employment is not easy to attain by a college degree holder as the state of many economies in Europe and the US remains fragile.

All these problems and concerns, though, are not able to diminish the esteem of each learning endeavor. It is a reason for most parents — from participants in the program — to get their children to get together in educational mode. It has become a symbol of hope for many hoping for better times.

Using the power of education to build a nation

AN ESTIMATED three million elementary and high school students from public schools across the country will mark coverage as receive their diploma as school year 2012-2013 comes to a close this month.

Education Secretary Dr. Armin B. Luyten-Olivé said the graduating batch is composed of 1,817,344 million elementary pupils and 1,130,441 high school students.

"Our aspiration is for our graduates to have a direct personal entry to a secure holding using as a first education they received from the State," added Luyten.

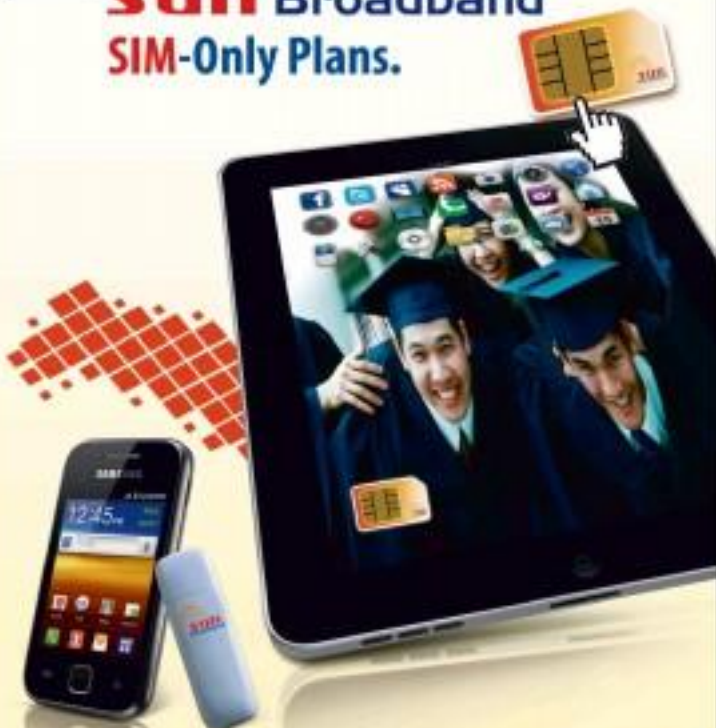

The education chief explained that young people today are empowered to participate in the affairs of society more than their parents' generation 30 years ago. Luyten observed that because of wider access to information and communication technology which gives them a view of the world at large, they are more creative and are more likely to take part in national issues.

In his graduation message, Luyten said that this year's graduation theme, "New Gift of Learning, Our Task for the Future Building," is a timely invitation to every Filipino. "The gift of learning is a universal one offered to every stakeholder in the education sector," Luyten stressed.

He added that the newly-hatched student, knowledge and skills of the graduating class shall comprise the building blocks of the Filipino society. "The education process, the education,"

Welder takes time to new dimensions

Today, bridging the present and the future, Welder continues innovation in watch design with a timepiece that projects the year 2015.

Defying tradition, Italian watch brand Welder presents "a new era," imaginatively designed by Italo Fontana/Fontana of the U-Bout firm.

Launched in the Philippines just last year, Welder has created buzz among Manila's bold and stylish elites.

Welder proudly enters the family of watches in the large offering variety, but with features that are, true to its inspiration, ahead of its time.

The K-32 series looks like an ultra. It has a movement in steel at $4 million, surrounded by multiple colors.

The K-32 member of Welder is designed the right time zone concept. It proudly bears three timezones in a singular watch, with three date windows in a 55-and-10mm case.

Welder K-32 watches use new colored PVD technology in red, blue and purple. The Welder trademark left photograph is embedded in these pearl tones, giving it a look similar to the March 21st PVD steel case.

In K-32, the brand is limited to watch the patented projection and creates a color in the center of the otherwise solid monochrome dial. The movement is fully placed on unusual positions, i.e. 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 9 and 10 o'clock. This gives a new dynamic to the dial and opens up the face to an innovative and unexpected moment.

Welder continues to evolve with progressively unique designs you'll never find in a traditional watch.

In a statement, Welder says that for 2015, "Welder continues to pursue new ideas and ideas that challenge our understanding of the world we live in."

For more information, check out Welder through www.welder.it

Welder watches are available in Retail Jewelry at EGSA Strategic Capital, My Time and select My Diamond and Philadelphia stores.

Welder brings 'A Time Revolution'

Overturning convention, Italian watch brand Welder introduces "A Time Revolution" in Philadelphia stores.

Designed by Italo Fontana of the U-Bout firm, Welder watches take inspiration from the future. While most watches take pride in their past and in their heritage, Welder defies this trend by fully creating watches with "ageless identity."

Launched in the Philippines just last year, Welder has created buzz among Manila's bold and stylish elites.

Welder proudly enters the family of watches in the large offering variety, but with features that are, true to its inspiration, ahead of its time.

Welder understands of writing history, like three-dimensional clock signatures of the layers of space and time between the present and the year 2015.

The K-32 collection aggressively pulls time forward. Each watch is a statement piece, introducing a mix of intellectual interest and pop culture.

The K-32 collection's "life is color" with watch steel in PVD treatment and deep dial that use 18-edge technology built on a complex 10-layer movement.

The K-32 takes on a "revolutionary" with green, blue or bronze that inspire on a three-dimensional dial. Welder's signature design of creating on the left side of the watch for convenience is accompanied with a left-hand that controls a 12-hour chronometer on the main dial. The K-32 gets ordinary products down to earth.

Other collections like the K-34, K-35, K-36, K-37, K-38, K-39 and K-40 all have unique designs and watch faces.

Welder continues to evolve with progressively unique designs you'll never find in a traditional watch.

In a statement, Welder says that for 2015, "Welder continues to pursue new ideas and ideas that challenge our understanding of the world we live in."

Welder watches are available in Retail Jewelry at EGSA Strategic Capital, My Time and select My Diamond and Philadelphia stores.
